Pearl S. Buck International Participates in Smithsonian Magazine's Museum Day Live!

On Saturday, September 22, 2018 Pearl S. Buck International will offer complimentary admission to the Pearl S. Buck House, a National Historic Landmark, and admission to the exhibit, The Call of the Tranquility: An Expression of Traditional Chinese Brush Painting.

Pearl S. Buck International is a participant in Smithsonian magazine's Museum Day Live! initiative, in which participating museums across the U.S. open their doors at no charge to those who download a Museum Day Live! ticket. For complimentary admission visitors should download a ticket at www.smithsonianmag.com/museumday and bring it with them to the Pearl S. Buck International Welcome Center.

Visitors to the National Historic Landmark house will be inspired as they learn about the life of Pearl S. Buck, a Pulitzer and Nobel Prize-winning writer, activist, and humanitarian. Fascinating artifacts on display, from the cupboard of board games she played with her family to the typewriter on which she wrote The Good Earth, convey the ordinary and extraordinary details of her life and legacy.

Visitors to the exhibit gallery will enjoy the current exhibit, The Call of the Tranquility: An Expression of Traditional Chinese Brush Painting, which features the beautiful work of four contemporary artists who continue the ancient tradition of Chinese brush painting.

The Pearl S. Buck House and Exhibit Gallery are located at 520 Dublin Rd., Perkasie, PA 18944-3000
